FREE SAMPLE
ChannelCraft Prompt Pack

10 free prompts from the full pack of 120

Try these today. If they save you time, the full pack —
120 prompts in 9 sections, plus a quick-start guide — is $2 (USDT on TON).

FREE SAMPLE — not for resale. The full pack is a paid product.
How to use: copy a prompt, replace every [bracketed item] with your own details, and paste it into ChatGPT, Claude, Gemini or DeepSeek.
The full pack covers: setup, content ideas, writing posts, hooks, engagement, growth, selling, analytics and community — prompts #1–#120.

What is in the full pack

- Section 1 — Setup & Positioning (12 prompts)
- Section 2 — Content Ideas & Planning (18 prompts)
- Section 3 — Writing Channel Posts (20 prompts)
- Section 4 — Hooks & First Lines (12 prompts)
- Section 5 — Engagement: Polls, Quizzes & Discussion (14 prompts)
- Section 6 — Growth: Subscribers & Discovery (14 prompts)
- Section 7 — Selling & Monetization (12 prompts)
- Section 8 — Analytics & Improvement (10 prompts)
- Section 9 — Community & Moderation (8 prompts)

The 10 sample prompts below are taken from across the full pack — one or two from each area — so you can judge the quality for yourself.

#1 Pick a channel niche that can last a year

For: Choose a niche narrow enough to stand out but wide enough to post about for a year.

> Act as a Telegram channel strategist. I want to start a channel about [topic]. My audience is [audience, e.g. beginner English learners aged 18-30]. I can post [number] times a week and I know a lot about [your strengths]. Give me: (1) 3 narrower niche angles inside [topic], each with a one-line promise to subscribers; (2) for each angle, 5 example post topics I could write without research; (3) your pick for the angle most likely to still have fresh topics after 12 months, with one reason why. Format as a short table, then your pick.

Example: Topic: English vocabulary. Audience: adult learners. Pick: 'One word a day with a real example sentence and a 10-second quiz' — narrow, repeatable, never runs out of words.

#13 Generate 30 specific post ideas

For: A month of specific post ideas, so you never stare at a blank screen.

> Act as a content planner for a Telegram channel about [topic] for [audience]. Give me 30 post ideas, grouped into 6 themes with 5 ideas each. Every idea must be specific enough to write in under 30 minutes — a vague idea like 'talk about grammar' is not allowed; a good one is '5 words people mix up at work, with one example each'. At least 5 of the 30 ideas must be interactive (poll, quiz, question, challenge). Number the ideas 1-30.

Example: Ideas for a vocab channel: '10 words for job interviews', 'words native speakers actually shorten', 'English for the gym'.

#31 Write a standard channel post

For: The core post format: one idea, one example, one question — the structure behind most good channel posts.

> Act as a Telegram copywriter. Write a channel post about [topic] for [audience]. The post must: (1) open with one strong line, (2) teach exactly one thing, (3) include one concrete example, (4) end with one question for the readers. Keep it under 150 words. Use short paragraphs (max 2 lines each) and bold for the key phrase only. Add at most 2 emojis. Tone: [friendly / professional / funny]. Do not use hashtags.

Example: Post: 'The word "although" is easier than you think. Although it was raining, we went out. Try it: write one sentence with "although" below.'

#33 Write a quick-tip post

For: Quick tips are the easiest high-value post — short to write, easy to try.

> Act as a Telegram copywriter for a channel about [topic] for [audience]. Write a quick-tip post about [specific tip]. The post must: (1) start with 'Tip:' followed by the tip in one sentence, (2) explain why it works in 2 sentences, (3) give one tiny example, (4) end with a question asking readers to share their own version. Keep it under 100 words. The tip must be something the reader can try in under 5 minutes.

Example: Tip post: 'Tip: When you learn a new word, say it out loud 3 times. Your mouth needs the practice as much as your brain.'

#51 Write 10 hooks for one post

For: The first line decides whether anyone reads the second line. Ten options beat one guess.

> Act as a Telegram copywriter for a channel about [topic] for [audience]. Here is a post I want people to read: [paste your post or its topic]. Write 10 different first lines (hooks) for it, each under 12 words. Use a mix of these types: a question, a surprising fact, a bold statement, a relatable problem, and a promise of something useful. Number them 1-10. Do not use clickbait that the post cannot deliver — every hook must be honest about what the post contains.

Example: Hooks for a vocab post: 'Stop saying "very good".' / 'You have been using this word wrong.' / '3 words that make you sound fluent.'

#63 Write a poll post

For: A poll is the lowest-effort engagement — one tap — so the question must be worth that tap.

Act as a Telegram content creator for a channel about [topic] for [audience]. Write a poll post about [subject]. Give me: (1) the poll question (under 20 words), (2) 4 answer options (each under 10 words, all realistic — no joke options unless the channel is funny), (3) the post text that goes above the poll (under 60 words, saying why the question matters), (4) one line telling me what I will learn from the results. Remember Telegram polls allow up to 10 options, but 4 is usually best.

Example: Poll: 'How do you learn new words?' — A) Flashcards B) Reading C) Watching videos D) Talking to people.

#77 Write a cross-promotion message

For: A post swap with the right channel is the cheapest honest growth there is.

Act as a Telegram growth strategist for a channel about [topic] for [audience]. I want to do a cross-promotion with a similar-sized channel. Write: (1) a short, polite message to send to the other channel's admin (under 80 words) that says who I am, why our audiences match, and what I propose (a post swap on a specific day), (2) the exact post I would publish about their channel (under 80 words, honest — only praise what I actually like), (3) 3 rules for choosing a good partner channel. Do not write anything that sounds like spam.

Example: Cross-promo message: 'Hi! I run English Word Daily (1,200 subscribers). Your channel [name] is great for my audience — would you like to swap a post this week? Here's my best post: [link].'

#91 Write a sales post for your product

For: A sales post that says what the buyer gets and what it costs — no hype, no promises.

Act as a Telegram copywriter for a channel about [topic] for [audience]. I have a product to offer: [describe the product, what it includes, and the price]. Write a sales post under 150 words that: (1) names the problem the product solves in the first line, (2) says exactly what the buyer gets (list the contents), (3) states the price clearly, (4) says how to buy in one sentence, (5) ends with one question for readers who are not ready to buy. Do not promise income, results, or guarantees I cannot keep. Tone: honest and direct, not hyped.

Example: Offer post: 'I made a pack of 120 prompts for Telegram channel owners — $2 in USDT. It includes a guide and a free 10-prompt sample. Details: [link].'

#103 Set up simple weekly tracking

For: Five numbers a week, tracked simply, beats a dashboard you never open.

> Act as a Telegram analyst for a channel about [topic] for [audience]. I post [number] times per week. Design a simple weekly tracking sheet I can keep in a notes app or spreadsheet, with these columns: Date, Post type, Topic, Views after 24h, Reactions, Comments, Forwards, Notes. Then tell me: (1) which 2 numbers matter most for a channel like mine and why, (2) which number is misleading on its own, (3) how many weeks of data I need before I trust a pattern. Keep the whole answer under 200 words.

Example: Track: date, post type, views at 24h, reactions, comments, forwards. After 4 weeks, sort by forwards — that's your best content.

#113 Set up your discussion group

For: A group without a welcome message and rules becomes noise in a week.

> Act as a Telegram community manager for a channel about [topic] for [audience]. I want to start a discussion group linked to my channel. Write: (1) the group's welcome message (under 120 words) — what the group is for, the 3 main rules, and what to do first, (2) 3 conversation starters for the first week, (3) one rule for how I will handle the group (e.g. I check it once a day at [time]). Keep the tone warm and clear. Do not promise 24/7 moderation I cannot do.

Example: Group welcome: 'Welcome! This is the discussion group for English Word Daily. Introduce yourself: your name, your level, and one word you learned this week.'

Get the full pack

The full ChannelCraft Prompt Pack has all 120 prompts plus the quick-start guide (how to use the prompts, a weekly workflow, and a 7-day start plan). Price: $2, paid in USDT on TON. Ask the seller for the buy link — the file is delivered by the Telegram bot right after your payment is confirmed.

No income or results are promised. This is a tool; what you build with it is yours.